Book Description The Swedish royal chariot and automobile manufacturer Saab has lately received a substantial investment and is currently developing products aimed at the consumer. The founder of Saab, Carl Edward Oberg, makes a number of special and personalised cars, which are included in the catalogue of the company's novelty department. Carl Oberg has himself driven the Saab automobiles, which are named by the first name of the car's owner. His personal cars, which are on the market since 1990, include three models: the Saab 900, the Saab 9-3 and the Saab 9-4X. As of the present, the Saab 900 is still in production. The Saab 9-3 is still in production and is offered at several Saab dealerships in Sweden, Germany and Denmark. In addition, there is the Saab 9-5X, which is also in production. The Saab 9-5X is an extended version of the Saab 9-4X. The Saab 9-5X is manufactured in Spain, which is where the parts for the car come from. The small Saab 12-3 is a one-off car that Carl Oberg has designed himself. This car is a "point and click" car. Carl Oberg designed the car on his computer, before he was too old to drive. In an interview on the programme "Sveriges Radio Aktuellt" [46] [47] Carl Oberg's personalised cars are not produced for mass production, as he wants to be able to keep the whole production process small enough to suit him 82157476af
